Air signs -- December 2021 tarot reading Page of wands, inverted knight of cups, inverted fool

Air signs...the first theme or message I got for you in this reading is about balancing your emotions before making major decisions in life.

I feel like you knew this was going to come up anyways, was going to be said. Your guides have been speaking to you, you might already be getting signs and messages, seeing synchronicities, numbers that are significant to you, "coincidences" left and right. These are not coincidences. They are messages meant for you. Your guides are trying to let you know that you should be looking before you leap. Your emotions are unbalanced and you may be attempting to make decisions from a mindset that is not the best for that right now.

This is a time in your life where you should be focusing on self exploration, growth, arts, creativity...anything that makes your soul shine and light up. This is a time for you to focus on yourself and all that sets your soul into a happy dance. Follow that and chase your bliss. Emotional stability will follow and then you can decide what your permanent life path should look like after that.

Journal prompt

When you look back on your memories from when you were younger, what stands out? What activities made you the happiest or brought you joy? Was it blocks and building structures with legos? Was it painting? Singing? Dancing? Look back over your life at what made you the happiest and find ways you can bring those feelings into your life as an adult. How can you chase down joy and happiness?
